Women Lawyers Association NSW
Australian Legal Practice Management Association
2010 and Beyond: Flexible Working Arrangements Model*

The last two years has seen a marked growth in the number of lawyers moving to flexible working arrangements across the spectrum of legal services providers from the private and public sectors. WLA NSW has launched a number of initiatives to provide information, assistance and support in this area.

Law firms may soon become subject to the new "right to request" laws in the Fair Work Act 2009 and will need to have procedures in place for receiving and assessing requests for flexible work

The latest project has been run jointly with ALPMA following member feedback that a model flexible working proposal would assist both lawyers and their employers to propose and consider requests for flexible work.

Guest Speaker: Nicole McKenna, is a freelance people strategy consultant and executive coach, with a particular interest in building organisational capability around gender diversity. She has extensive experience in the legal sector, having practised as a lawyer in Australia and New York and having occupied the roles of Director, People & Performance and Director, Partner Development at Allens Arthur Robinson. She is currently a Director of the National Foundation for Australian Women, where she co-wrote the Foundation's submission in relation to the review of the EOWW Act. She is also a Council Member of Security4Women.
